

Carrie Lewis, Marketing Leader, dormakaba USA Inc.

Carrie Lewis is a US-based corporate marketing communications leader with over 15 years leading and building, in both the public and private sectors, strategic corporate marketing initiatives for diverse global enterprises, across diverse commercial and consumer products industries. Carrie's high reverence with corporate teams stems from a tireless "getting things done" attitude and track-record, with a continual focus on fresh and innovative targeted campaigns.

Carrie currently leads the channel and product marketing strategy for dormakaba Americas division, one of the top three leading companies of access control and security solutions on the global market; a leader in technology based security and physical access systems.

Before devoting herself to dormakaba, Carrie lead the commercial security product marketing efforts at STANLEY Black & Decker, as well as the residential professional marketing strategy at Ingersoll Rand's, now Allegion, US-based security team. Carrie has also directed marketing efforts for Beazer Homes, US, and has taught at West Virginia University.